PIONEERS OF SPORT MEDICINE

Brothers, Chuck and Frank Cramer founded Cramer Products in 1918 when they began selling their homemade athletic liniment to coaches. Cramer Chemical Co. was born right there in their mom's kitchen and so was the field of sports medicine.

Chuck and Frank propelled the company forward through hard work, integrity and a commitment to product innovation. Almost a century later, Cramer remains true to these roots and our headquarters still sits on the footprint of the first Cramer building in Gardner, Kansas.

Cramer Products has led the sports medicine industry for over 95 years. From our days of educating the first athletic trainers to proudly founding the National Athletic Trainer's Association, which we still support today, Cramer carries on the innovative ideals of our founders.

We use the most advanced materials and science available to create products designed by athletic trainers for athletic trainers. In fact, several of us here at Cramer are certified athletic trainers. So it's no surprise that Cramer products meet the needs of athletic trainers, sports medicine clinicians and athletes of all ages and skill levels.

In recent years, Cramer enhanced its growth and diversification through several acquisitions. In 2004, Cosom Sporting Goods was acquired, increasing Cramer's line of physical education products. In 2008, we acquired Active Ankle Systems, Inc., a leading supplier of braces and supports. The newest member of the Cramer family was acquired in June, 2011- Stromgren Athletics, a leader in compression and protective performance apparel.

LACE-UP BRACES

- The high compression sock portion of the brace applies significant but comfortable compression to both the lateral and deltoid ligaments, to help support them in both an inversion and eversion situation.

VALUE

NEW

- Permanently attached heel-lock design provides a solid strap on both the medial and lateral sides of the ankle, to assist in stabilizing the tibia to the subtalar joint and to help reduce the potential of a ligament strain.
- Additional 10.16cm wide medial and lateral straps help to anchor the heel-lock straps in place and create solid support that provides additional resistance in helping to prevent an ankle injury.

DO YOUR BEST WITH

PERFORMANCE SHORTS

Cramer's Performance Shorts are perfect for athletes who want enhanced core support and muscle performance during training and competition. The body of the short is made of 78% nylon and 22% spandex and the elastic is 90% polyester and 10% spandex.

The short's advantage comes from its anatomical design and elastic cross band and the light-weight fabric promotes endurance and mobility. Michael Chan, ATC, Associate Athletic Director/Sports Medicine at Wayne State University, tried out the Performance Shorts on his players during football season. Both Mike and his athletes liked the results.

"The guys loved the Performance Short" Mike says, "It's comfortable, especially after the first wash when they soften a bit. The Performance Short gives support where they need to give support. Some of the athletes we gave them to had been wearing another brand of short and say the Performance Short is comparable in every way. The short provides support in the hip region where it's needed most. It serves as a prophylactic type of product, similar to the way an ankle brace provides stability to an ankle. Wearing the short possibly could minimize the extent of an injury or a pull. Our guys wear them when they're working out, lifting and practicing—they wear them all the time, whenever they're active. We had 12 pairs of the shorts, and the guys were asking me for them all the time. I'm going to have to get more!"

"From an equipment standpoint," Mike says, "I see the Performance Short as sports medicine equipment rather than an athletic garment like shoulder pads or pants. The shorts are a preventive measure to keep athletes healthy. For example, when an athlete is working his way back to activity following a hamstring or hip flexor injury, the short's compression retains heat, helping the muscle stay warm throughout activity."

OPTIMAL VERSATILE NECESSITIES

ORTHO GEL™ | NOVADERM™

Are you putting the power of glycerine technology to work for your athletes? Cramer's bacteriostatic Ortho Gel™, used for padding and cushion and Nova Derm™, used for wound care, provide moist protection, comfort, faster healing, scar reduction, odor control and decreased pain and also prevent the spread of infection. These effective, versatile products are important additions to your kit!

Both Ortho Gel™ and Nova Derm™ are made from glycerine technology. Glycerin mimics the skin and fat cells but isn't water-based so it absorbs extra moisture. The skin underneath stays moist, the skin doesn't become over-saturated and tissue is never damaged. With the moist nature of glycerine, the products stay pliable and never dry out—even when left in a supply closet or exposed to extreme temperatures. When applied to a painful, shallow wound, Nova Derm™ and Ortho Gel™ seal off the exposed nerve and instantly reduce pain. The products can also be chilled to provide effective cryotherapy. Pate Cagle, ATC, head athletic trainer at the College of Mount Saint Joseph in Cincinnati, says he has used Ortho Gel™ for many years and likes its versatility. "It comes in various thicknesses and adheres to the body so application is easy and it stays in place Pate says. "We can quickly cut the sheets to any shape to use on any body part. It's simple to use and we generally get multiple days of use out of one application unless it's a weight bearing area that gets smashed. I have used the product for years and have always found it useful in virtually any sport."

Pate continues, "Ortho Gel™ has great shock absorbing qualities so impact is spread out over an area. I would have to use twice as much of a foam pad to get that kind of padding and shock absorption. It works well for padding hands because it's not bulky. It's thin enough to apply under shin guards and it stays in place and dissipates blows. If someone had a sore on the AT joint in their shoulder you could apply it there and get the same results. Because the application is easy and the thickness is less than a normal padding product, there are many uses for Ortho Gel™. It would be hard to find a place on the body where I couldn't find a use for it!"

FIND SOLUTION WITH RIGIDLITE™

Most wearers of the sling style bag are constantly on the go. They need a lightweight kit that is comfortable and wearable for long periods of time that carries just what they need. The problem with these kits, in today's market, is that in order to acquire those aspects you have to give up any semblance of organization. This forces the athletic trainer to use open floppy pockets which are about as organized as a trash bag and to wear kits in ways they weren't designed to be used... like a fanny pack over the shoulder.

Finally there is an answer to this problem with the new Rigidlite™ Messenger.

This kit implements many of the new features found in the rest of the Rigidlite™ line using modular organization and a semi rigid thermoformed structure with rigid skeletal support.

- Slide around design allows you to work out of the bag without taking it off.
- Padded structural dividers allow you to customize the space and keep things organized.
- Two clear plastic lidded modules help you get to what you need fast.
- Ultra wide strap design to be worn over the shoulder for maximum long term comfort.
- Quick pull zipper for quick and easy access to the interior of the bag.
- Water-proof rain cover that stores easily in the padded portion of the kit for rainy practices or games. This cover protects your gear, cell phones or wallets that you might want to put in the bag on a rainy day.
- Gusseted front pocket for sleek look, when empty, but expands with ease to fit larger items.
